

---

4th grade science book MSN Money: What if no one were fat?

Posted by Rod Speed - 2008/05/10 20:06

---

Nope, you can, as always. So can you. My question is . . . . What id there were no Fascist scumbags in this world? You'd have nothing to whine about, hippo. I'm sure he does.

=====

4th grade science book MSN Money: What if no one were fat?

Posted by Fat Teddy Bear - 2008/05/10 20:06

---

Rod Speed = quick rapist! So, why don't you go fuck yourself instead???

=====

4th grade science book MSN Money: What if no one were fat?

Posted by Fat Teddy Bear - 2008/05/10 20:06

---

Rod Speed, you're a dumb ass! Yes, there has been a few times when I was the only passenger on the bus, but that usually doesn't last long. Then more people get on the bus, and there are times when a bus is over crowded and people are standing in the aisle. Sometime I'm waiting for a bus and one goes by with the panel on the front flashing FULL LOAD and it goes on by and I have to wait for another bus. But, between those rare times when there is only one or two passengers on the bus, and those times that the bus is over crowded and can't take on more passengers, it all averages out. In the real world we have random fluctuations between the extremes. But in Shirley Skeel's fantasy world, she envisions a world where we all look alike, all being the same height and weight, all standing at attention like rows of pencils, in a world without random fluctuations. That is like dumping a box full of dice from a tall building, and expecting all the dice to come up snake-eyes, or expecting an ice cube to suddenly appear, floating on top in a pot of boiling water! That is never going to happen! Not in a billion years, not in a trillion years, not even in googplex raised to the power of googplex number of years! So, we will never have a world where no one is fat. There will always be fat people, thin people, short people, tall people, and people in between. It's called genetic diversity, and genetic diversity within a species insures the survival of the species as a whole, contrary to what you Nazis might think! She is really asking What if we were all alike? and that is what she would like for us to become, just so she can have a little extra pocket change, thinking that it would be more economical if we were all alike, not having to design everything to take individual differences into account! Well, if Shirley Skeel want to have more money in her slimy pockets, then she should just go out and whore for it, and shut the fuck up! She might as well since she is just another anorexic bimbo slut! So, you can take that to the bank!

=====

4th grade science book MSN Money: What if no one were fat?

Posted by PerkinsKyle@caller.com - 2008/05/10 20:06

---

can't hold a job. That is pretty funny coming from an incestuous fuck who couldn't get it up in viagra factory. LV You're familiar with incestuous fucking are you? Oh that's right, you're in Texas.

=====

4th grade science book MSN Money: What if no one were fat?

Posted by Fat Teddy Bear - 2008/05/10 20:06

---

I'm unable to hold a job, not because of my weight, but because I'm far less able to cope with emotional stress than most people So you're a worthless fucking parasite sucking on the public tit. Yours in Christ, Marty No! The worthless fucking parasites are football players who can't read beyond the second grade level and yet, they get paid millions of dollars every year just for kicking a hunk of pig-skin over an iron post. They rape our sisters and daughters, but all they get is a slap on the wrist. No! Not even that! They get a pat on the back and a brand new car! For FREE! OH! And I don't believe in your Jeezer fuckin' Keeeeeeerist! I don't believe in the Trinity, Papa, Junior, and The Spook! I'm a B'nai Noach, or Noachide so I don't believe in your pagan idols! So! Fuck off, and may God bless you, because you're going to need it! That's pretty funny coming from an emotionally crippled welfare mooch who can't hold a job. That is pretty funny coming from an incestuous fuck who couldn't get it up in viagra factory. LV You're familiar with incestuous fucking are you? Oh that's right, you're in Texas. No! I was molested when I was 17, and it was not from a family member. Most of you jerks here are unsympathetic, but how would you feel if it happened to you or one of your kids. Then I'm sure that you might be singing a different song! So, none of you can't say shit! You're all a bunch of punks who have had it easy! You can all go to where the woodbine twineth and the iceman venture not!

---

=====

4th grade science book MSN Money: What if no one were fat?

Posted by - 2008/05/10 20:06

---

there was no hatred, prejudice, and bigotry in this world. Just think of how much money would be saved if we didn't have any more wars, and how much would be saved if we feed all the hungry people in the world, because hunger, and lack of resources, often lead to violence and war which exacts heavy costs in the number of deaths, and damage to civilization. I grew up knowing about the cost of hatred when I went to school as a kid, back in the 1960s. I'm 46 years old now. And yes, I'm a fat person at only 5 ft 6 in and 400 pounds. When I was 4 years old, I fell out of a car, and busted my left knee on the road, so as a kid, my left leg was crippled up, and I walked with a limp, and I could not run, and I was lousy at sports. My mother taught me how to read and write before I even started school, and by the time I was only in the 3rd grade, I was already reading at the high school and adult level. When I was 13, I scored 150 points on a standard IQ test, so going through school should have been a breeze for me. Science was my favorite subject, especially Astronomy. But then, back in 1962 I believe, the President's Council on Physical Fitness said that Americans were out of shape and that we all needed to go on 50 mile hikes, and then, our schools became super gung-ho on Physical Education, while cutting back on academics. In the 4th grade, I was suspended from school because I failed to climb a rope in a gymnasium. In the 5th grade I had my first male teacher who made my life a living Hell in the PE class. He would humiliate me in front of all the other students, and one day he punched me in the stomach with a basketball. Then there was another time when our class went to the school library. There was this one Astronomy book that I wanted to check out, but the teacher would not allow me to have that book. When I asked why he let all the other kids check out any book they wanted, but not me, he dragged me out of the library, out into the hallway, grabbed me by the shoulders, and bashed my head up against the corner of a concrete block wall. The following year, that teacher was fired and could not get a teaching job anywhere else. But for years after that, from the age of 11 years and through out my teen ages years, I had dizzy spells and headaches as a result of my head injuries. I suffered a lot of mental and emotional problems, and during my teen age years, I gained a lot of weight, and I got fat, weighing about 280 pounds by the time I was only 17 years old. In school I was harassed and bullied around by the jocks. I was called a fat sissy boy because I didn't care for sports, and in high school, I wanted nothing to do with the drug scene. I tried to avoid anyone who was using drugs, but a couple of pusher keep harassing me, trying to get me to try some of their stuff. Then I made a stupid mistake. I turned them in, because they wouldn't leave me alone. After than, I was harassed even more. In the art class, my oil paintings were destroyed, I had books stolen from me, and my life was even threatened, so for my own safety, I had to drop out of school. After that, I had a total breakdown, mentally and emotionally, and spent three weeks in a mental hospital, where I was beaten on a regular bases, and one night, I was raped by an older man. I was 17 years old at the time, and after I came home from the mental hospital, after the effects of the drugs wore off, my weight shot up from 220 pounds to around 280 pounds in less than two months! When I turned 18, I was in no condition mentally and emotionally to hold a job, so my mother had to file a claim for disability on my behalf, and of course, this was back in 1969 during the Viet Nam war, so I had to register for the draft, but the Army reject me because I was about 120 pounds overweight. Actually, I was glad for that, because it meant that I didn't have to go to Viet Nam and die for a country that treated me like a 4th class citizen. Since I never graduated High School, I took the GED Test, and I scored high in it, and got a certificate that is as good as a High School Diploma, and from 1975 to 1978 I tried going to Collage where I majored in Physics and Astronomy, but I never completed my degree. I was under a lot of emotional stress. I made Bs in most of my math classes, and I love Trigonometry. For me its' fun, but I couldn't hack being under too much stress. I have become emotionally fragile, unable to control my emotions, probably due to my head injuries and some other factors in my life. And so, I have been a victim of prejudice and hatred, the same kind of bigotry being spouted off by the likes of people like Shirley Skeel, who is a slimy green with the lust for money. All she cares about is money, and she does not care if human lives are put on the Sacrificial Alter of Capitalism and Greed just to save a few bucks. I'm more interested in saving human lives than saving money! As for me, being fat has done me no harm, and has actually protected me from more serious injuries from beatings I had received in the past. But the hatred, just for being different, had taken a far greater tole on me than my weight ever could. Hey, because I'm fat, I actually save more energy. I don't need to have my thermostat set so high during the winter months and have my home heated at tropical temperatures as thin people do. I'm too fat to drive a car, so I use public transportation, thus saving more energy. Also, I have a slow metabolism. Normal body temperature is about 98.6 degrees, while mine averages 96.5 degrees. That usually indicated hypothyroid, but I've been checked for that, and the lab results always come back negative. I can maintain my weight on fewer calories than the average size person, thus saving more on food. It's been said that to maintain a weight of 400 pounds, that it would take about 4000 calories, but I can maintain my weight on just 2500 calories per day. I know a lot of skinny people, like my younger brother for example: who is much taller, and only weighs about 160 pounds, and he eats a Hell of a lot more than I do, but he is not anymore active than I am, because he is also crippled up and walks with a cane, and he needed to use a cane about 10 years before I finally needed one myself. He has had surgery done on one of his feet, and he has incurred far more medical expenses than I have. I'm not harming anybody else, but I have been harmed several times repeatedly, and it has cost me much. I'm unable to hold a job, not because of my weight, but because I'm far less able to cope with emotional stress than most people, thanks to all that had happened to me, so my earning potential is greatly reduced. I plan to go back to working on my oil paintings again, and perhaps I might be able to supplement my meager income. And so, someone should publish an article about the high cost, of prejudice, hatred, and bigotry! I say we need more fat people in this world, and we need to get even fatter! Most of the fat people I have known were very kind and gentle people. I only knew a few who were mean or aggressive, but most of us fat people are gentle and more docile. We are far less prone to committing violent crimes, and fat men have much lower suicide rates than thin people. I hope more and more people become obese, and when every man, woman, and child is obese, we will all be too soft and weak to want to fight in anymore bloody wars, and we will have to depend more on human intelligence to solve our conflicts, and seek more peaceful solutions. Increasing obesity around the world may one day bring about world peace, thus saving even more money. Say Teddy. If you don't like life as an obese person why don't you bring your weight down by about 250 pounds.? Hundreds of thousands before you have made a decision and shed the excess weight and opened up a new life for themselves. No one has said that it will be easy. However, it took a long time to put it on and you will not take it off within a short period of time. It takes dedication, self discipline and a willingness to follow a whole new lifestyle. A six month diet is not the answer. People I know who have quit smoking and lost large amounts of weight tell me that quitting smoking is the most difficult of the two. Jan

=====

4th grade science book MSN Money: What if no one were fat?

Posted by Fat Teddy Bear - 2008/05/10 20:06

When I was 4 years old, I fell out of a car, and busted my left knee on the road, so as a kid, my left leg was crippled up, and I walked with a limp, and I could not run, and I was lousy at sports. My mother taught me how to read and write before I even started school, and by the time I was only in the 3rd grade, I was already reading at the high school and adult level. When I was 13, I scored 150 points on a standard IQ test, so going through school should have been a breeze for me. Science was my favorite subject, especially Astronomy. But then, back in 1962 I believe, the President's Council on Physical Fitness said that Americans were out of shape and that we all needed to go on 50 mile hikes, and then, our schools became super gung-ho on Physical Education, while cutting back on academics. In the 4th grade, I was suspended from school because I failed to climb a rope in a gymnasium. In the 5th grade I had my first male teacher who made my life a living Hell in the PE class. He would humiliate me in front of all the other students, and one day he punched me in the stomach with a basketball. Then there was another time when our class went to the school library. There was this one Astronomy book that I wanted to check out, but the teacher would not allow me to have that book. When I asked why he let all the other kids check out any book they wanted, but not me, he dragged me out of the library, out into the hallway, grabbed me by the shoulders, and bashed my head up against the corner of a concrete block wall. The following year, that teacher was fired and could not get a teaching job anywhere else. But for years after that, from the age of 11 years and through out my teen ages years, I had dizzy spells and headaches as a result of my head injuries. I suffered a lot of mental and emotional problems, and during my teen age years, I gained a lot of weight, and I got fat, weighing about 280 pounds by the time I was only 17 years old. In school I was harassed and bullied around by the jocks. I was called a fat sissy boy because I didn't care for sports, and in high school, I wanted nothing to do with the drug scene. I tried to avoid anyone who was using drugs, but a couple of pusher keep harassing me, trying to get me to try some of their stuff. Then I made a stupid mistake. I turned them in, because they wouldn't leave me alone. After that, I was harassed even more. In the art class, my oil paintings were destroyed, I had books stolen from me, and my life was even threatened, so for my own safety, I had to drop out of school. After that, I had a total breakdown, mentally and emotionally, and spent three weeks in a mental hospital, where I was beaten on a regular bases, and one night, I was raped by an older man. I was 17 years old at the time, and after I came home from the mental hospital, after the effects of the drugs wore off, my weight shot up from 220 pounds to around 280 pounds in less than two months! When I turned 18, I was in no condition mentally and emotionally to hold a job, so my mother had to file a claim for disability on my behalf, and of course, this was back in 1969 during the Viet Nam war, so I had to register for the draft, but the Army reject me because I was about 120 pounds overweight. Actually, I was glad for that, because it meant that I didn't have to go to Viet Nam and die for a country that treated me like a 4th class citizen. Since I never graduated High School, I took the GED Test, and I scored high in it, and got a certificate that is as good as a High School Diploma, and from 1975 to 1978 I tried going to Collage where I majored in Physics and Astronomy, but I never completed my degree. I was under a lot of emotional stress. I made Bs in most of my math classes, and I love Trigonometry. For me its' fun, but I couldn't hack being under too much stress. I have become emotionally fragile, unable to control my emotions, probably due to my head injuries and some other factors in my life. And so, I have been a victim of prejudice and hatred, the same kind of bigotry being spouted off by the likes of people like Shirley Skeel, who is a slimy green with the lust for money. All she cares about is money, and she does not care if human lives are put on the Sacrificial Alter of Capitalism and Greed just to save a few bucks. I'm more interested in saving human lives than saving money! As for me, being fat has done me no harm, and has actually protected me from more serious injuries from beatings I had received in the past. But the hatred, just for being different, had taken a far greater tole on me than my weight ever could. Hey, because I'm fat, I actually save more energy. I don't need to have my thermostat set so high during the winter months and have my home heated at tropical temperatures as thin people do. I'm too fat to drive a car, so I use public transportation, thus saving more energy. Also, I have a slow metabolism. Normal body temperature is about 98.6 degrees, while mine averages 96.5 degrees. That usually indicated hypothyroid, but I've been checked for that, and the lab results always come back negative. I can maintain my weight on fewer calories than the average size person, thus saving more on food. It's been said that to maintain a weight of 400 pounds, that it would take about 4000 calories, but I can maintain my weight on just 2500 calories per day. I know a lot of skinny people, like my younger brother for example: who is much taller, and only weighs about 160 pounds, and he eats a Hell of a lot more than I do, but he is not anymore active than I am, because he is also crippled up and walks with a cane, and he needed to use a cane about 10 years before I finally needed one myself. He has had surgery done on one of his feet, and he has incurred far more medical expenses than I have. I'm not harming anybody else, but I have been harmed several times repeatedly, and it has cost me much. I'm unable to hold a job, not because of my weight, but because I'm far less able to cope with emotional stress than most people, thanks to all that had happened to me, so my earning potential is greatly reduced. I plan to go back to working on my oil paintings again, and perhaps I might be able to supplement my meager income. And so, someone should publish an article about the high cost, of prejudice, hatred, and bigotry! I say we need more fat people in this world, and we need to get even fatter! Most of the fat people I have known were very kind and gentle people. I only knew a few who were mean or aggressive, but most of us fat people are gentle and more docile. We are far less prone to committing violent crimes, and fat men have much lower suicide rates than thin people. I hope more and more people become obese, and when every man, woman, and child is obese, we will all be too soft and weak to want to fight in anymore bloody wars, and we will have to depend more on human intelligence to solve our conflicts, and seek more peaceful solutions. Increasing obesity around the world may one day bring about world peace, thus saving even more money. Say Teddy. If you don't like life as an obese person why don't you bring your weight down by about 250 pounds.? Hundreds of thousands before you have made a decision and shed the excess weight and opened up a new life for themselves. No one has said that it will be easy. However, it took a long time to put it on and you will not take it off within a short period of time. It takes dedication, self discipline and a willingness to follow a whole new lifestyle. A six month diet is not the answer. People I know who have quit smoking and lost large amounts of weight tell me that quitting smoking is the most difficult of the two. Jan AND THE FARMER HAULED ANOTHER LOAD AWAY!!! Oh please! I've heard that tired old Cliche' over and over again. It's been done to death! Like, who pulled your string? My weight is not the issue here! What is at issue is the media propoganda of mindless conformism being shoved down our throats on a daily bases. They want us all be alike. God forbid that anyone should be different! You assume that I don't like being fat, that I would be happier if I have a 32 inch waist. No! The problems I had growing up as a kid, going to school, etc. etc. all started before I got fat. I was 13 when I started gaining a lot of weight. Before then, I was of average weight for my height and age. OK! So now, some people hate my guts because I'm fat! Like, big fuckin' hairy deal! I was hated before I got fat. In school, I was hated because I was lousy at sports, being made fun of because I couldn't run. But that was due to a knee injury I had when I fell out of a car, so I always walked with a limp. I was hated, by

... read more »

---

4th grade science book MSN Money: What if no one were fat?

Posted by Robin King - 2008/05/10 20:06

---

People I know who have quit smoking and lost large amounts of weight tell me that quitting smoking is the most difficult of the two. Funny, people tell me just the opposite. Especially about keeping the weight off for a great length of time. Robin - Hide quoted text -- Show quoted text - Jan

---

4th grade science book MSN Money: What if no one were fat?

Posted by Mac - 2008/05/10 20:06

---

You can all go to where the woodbine twineth and the iceman venture not! Is this what we get for supporting you with our taxpayer dollars?

---

4th grade science book MSN Money: What if no one were fat?

Posted by Fat Teddy Bear - 2008/05/10 20:06

---

I was molested when I was 17, and it was not from a family member. You were old enough to say 'no'. It was probably the only sexual activity that you've ever had. Most of you jerks here are unsympathetic, but how would you feel if it happened to you or one of your kids. You're a professional victim. Then I'm sure that you might be singing a different song! You probably enjoyed it. So, none of you can't say shit! You're all a bunch of punks who have had it easy! With your next welfare check, you should have victim tattooed on your forehead. You can all go to where the woodbine twineth and the iceman venture not! Is this what we get for supporting you with our taxpayer dollars? First of all, when I was molested, the gut was physically much stronger, he had his arm around my neck, and I didn't have the strength to fight him off, and he said that if I struggle that he was going to kill me! So, what the hells was I suppose to do! I'm not on welfare, I'm on SSI for disability! A lousy $600 per month. If anyone is a mooch, it's the monkey boy super-jocks who get paid millions of dollars just for chasing balls, and they get to rape our sisters and daughters, and get off with a slap on a wrist. Most of the time, they don't even get a slap on the wrist. They get a pat on the back and a brand new car for FREE!!! So, you may shove it up left and go fuck yourself sideways! And, you can take that to the bank!

---

=====

4th grade science book MSN Money: What if no one were fat?

Posted by The Master - 2008/05/10 20:06

---

First of all, when I was molested, the gut was physically much stronger, he had his arm around my neck, and I didn't have the strength to fight him off, and he said that if I struggle that he was going to kill me! Never give real details about your private life on the internet. Anything you say can and will be twisted around, mocked, and made fun of, by those users who make themselves feel better by causing others pain. I for one am sorry such things happened to you, but there are others who will insist on using such hardship as a cruel joke. Those emotionally crippled people have no concept of how to deal with their own misfortune.

=====

4th grade science book MSN Money: What if no one were fat?

Posted by Jeremy - 2008/05/10 20:06

---

I hope more and more people become obese, and when every man, woman, and child is obese, we will all be too soft and weak to want to fight in anymore bloody wars, and we will have to depend more on human intelligence to solve our conflicts, and seek more peaceful solutions. Increasing obesity around the world may one day bring about world peace, thus saving even more money. You better be careful what you wish for, Teddy. If everyone were morbidly obese who would left to be working and paying the taxes that provide you with your $600 a month freebie. Who would repair the streets, who would build houses. who would work in the factories, who would build and repair our vehicles, who would operate the utility companies, who would mine the coal, who would grow the food. Who would be delivering the pizza to your house? Do you think, for a moment, that folks like you would be doing these jobs? As for that $600 per month that you get for doing nothing and then scoff at. Do you realize that many people toil hard all week for less than $600 and are pleased to have their jobs. You believe that you are treated unfairly because you are morbidly obese. You can do something about your obesity. How about a very short person, how about an extremely unattractive person. how about a person with a disfiguring dermatological condition? You, Teddy Bear, are all hung up on yourself. Time for you to start counting your blessings and perhaps send a thank you note to the folks working at the SSI office. Have you ever considered sending in a Letter to the Editor to be printed in the newspaper thanking all the people who go to work everyday and pay taxes while you sit at home in front of your computer complaining and whining.? Jeremy

** Posted from <http://www.teranews.com> **

=====

4th grade science book MSN Money: What if no one were fat?

Posted by Fat Teddy Bear - 2008/05/10 20:06

---

Never give real details about your private life on the internet. Anything you say can and will be twisted around, mocked, and made fun of, by those users who make themselves feel better by causing others pain. I for one am sorry such things happened to you, but there are others who will insist on using such hardship as a cruel joke. Those emotionally crippled people have no concept of how to deal with their own misfortune. Good afternoon Master. Thank you and god bless you. Yeah, I can see that there are a lot of people on this particular forum who are pig-ignorant morons. I don't use my real name on these forums, for obvious reasons. But I'm trying to make a point, that some of these crazy schemes to save a few bucks might result in the wasting of human lives. When I went to school, they decided that they could save money by cutting back on academics and investing more in athletics, because football makes money for a school, while educating students cost money. It is much cheaper to put up new basketball hoops and replace worn out balls, than it is to resupply a chemistry lab, a biology lab, and a physics lab with new equipment. Scientific equipment is far more expensive than sports equipment. Also, they decided that instead of educating students in science and math, it was cheaper to train football players, because then, they might go on to become professionals, keeping the rednecks entertained on Sunday afternoons, then they get drunk, and then, they beat the ever-living Hell out of their wives and kids when their favorite team loses the big game on the season. Ah yes! God bless America! Don't-cha just love it!!! But then, since we save money by not teaching science, we can always import techno-geeks from Japan to keep the wheels of our modern world turning. Yeah, Japan got it's revenge for the time we bombed Hiroshima and Nagasaki. Their students are better educated, and they come over here and snatch up all the good jobs because too many American students who graduate from High School, can't even read or write beyond the 6th grade. DUH!!! To Be Continued . . . .

---

=====

4th grade science book MSN Money: What if no one were fat?

Posted by Fat Teddy Bear - 2008/05/10 20:06

---

Never give real details about your private life on the internet. Anything you say can and will be twisted around, mocked, and made fun of, by those users who make themselves feel better by causing others pain. I for one am sorry such things happened to you, but there are others who will insist on using such hardship as a cruel joke. Those emotionally crippled people have no concept of how to deal with their own misfortune. . . . . Continued from earlier post A recent opinion poll shows that about 20% percent of the population in the USA believes that the sun revolves around the earth. Americans are becoming increasingly dumbed-down as a society. Reading of books, newspapers and magazines is on the decline. A 2007 study even found that 80 percent of American families did not buy or read a book in 2006. General knowledge is eroding. This is evidenced not only by the fact that one in five U.S. adults believe the sun revolves around the Earth, but also many others. Yet, it's not bad enough that knowledge is quickly declining in the United States. On top of that, there is an arrogance about this lack of knowledge, almost as if a good portion of the population is saying, "We know we are ignorant, but we really don't care!" Consider, for instance, that a 2006 survey by National Geographic- Roper found that nearly half of young Americans did not think it was necessary to know the location of other countries in which important news was being made. And another one-third felt it was "not at all important" to know a foreign language. Why is this so concerning? Because ...Fear and Ignorance Go Hand in Hand!

When I was a kid, Astronomy was my favorite subject, but I also liked Geography, One of my favorite hobbies was collecting maps. Yeah! I AM A FAT SISSY BOY! Because I HATE football! I hate sports! But I love reading books. I love classical music. I love working on oil paintings. And no, I'm not gay. Guys who bully people around, the Macho Jockos, they are the ones who are insecure about their own masculinity, so they have to act tough and be bullies to prove their so-called manhood. But they only expose themselves for the moronic imbeciles that they truly are! So, I'm proud to be a fat sissy boy! We also live in a Bimbo Culture of young anorexic teens who's shallow-minded conversations revolve around jogging shoes and wearing Nikes And Rebacks. So, how many lives must be destroyed just so that screaming anorexic bitch, Shirley Skeel, can hear a louder jingle in her pockets?

=====

4th grade science book MSN Money: What if no one were fat?

Posted by Fat Teddy Bear - 2008/05/10 20:06

---

I hope more and more people become obese, and when every man, woman, and child is obese, we will all be too soft and weak to want to fight in anymore bloody wars, and we will have to depend more on human intelligence to solve our conflicts, and seek more peaceful solutions. Increasing obesity around the world may one day bring about world peace, thus saving even more money. You better be careful what you wish for, Teddy. If everyone were morbidly obese who would left to be working and paying the taxes that provide you with your $600 a month freebie. Who would repair the streets, who would build houses. who would work in the factories, who would build and repair our vehicles, who would operate the utility companies, who would mine the coal, who would grow the food. Who would be delivering the pizza to your house? Do you think, for a moment, that folks like you would be doing these jobs? As for that $600 per month that you get for doing nothing and then scoff at. Do you realize that many people toil hard all week for less than $600 and are pleased to have their jobs. You believe that you are treated unfairly because you are morbidly obese. You can do something about your obesity. How about a very short person, how about an extremely unattractive person. how about a person with a disfiguring dermatological condition? You, Teddy Bear, are all hung up on yourself. Time for you to start counting your blessings and perhaps send a thank you note to the folks working at the SSI office. Have you ever considered sending in a Letter to the Editor to be printed in the newspaper thanking all the people who go to work everyday and pay taxes while you sit at home in front of your computer complaining and whining.? Jeremy ** Posted from <http://www.teranews.com>** OK! I was just kidding about that part! OK? No, I really don't wish that everybody were fat like me. I know that is just as unrealistic as Shirley Skeel wishing that everybody were thin. So, I was just being sarcastic. But I guess you're not intelligent enough to recognize satire. You probably believe that Mad Magazine is real! But the rest of what I'm saying is not satire. All I'm saying is that we can not all be alike, nor would I want to live in a world where everybody was alike. There will always be fat people, thin people, and people in between. Hey! How come almost everybody here complains about my measly little $600 dollar monthly check when almost nobody complains about the rapist moronic monkey boy who gets millions of dollars just for chasing a ball? I was beaten and battered around by a monkey-boy, and he was the one who should have been expelled from school, and not me! In our schools, as you enter the lobby, what is the first thing you see? You will see a glass display case, with all kinds of nice shiny football trophies to honor all of the monkey-boys! But for all the students on the A Honor Role, all they get is a sheet of paper tacked up on the bulletin board with their names on it, and eventually it disappears, or it's covered up with announcements for the next sporting event, or some other shit! I believe that students on the A Honer Role should have their names engraved on a nice shiny bronze plaque, nothing really fancy, but something that looks dignified. They deserve some recognition. Do they not? OH! Just think of my measly little $600 dollar monthly check as my retirement pension for the years I worked (involuntarily I might add) being a human punching bag and a tacklin dummy for the jocks to practice on in school! While I was on the job I was not paid for it, so I was actually their slave! Gee wiz! I thought slavery was abolished after The Civil War. But most student are not awar of that, since most high school students today can't even read and write beyond the 3rd grade level anymore! Oh! By the way, I did not come from a welfare family. My parents were factory workers. They bought a house, and paid property taxes on the house, and they paid school taxes. Their tax dollars paid for the Astronomy books I was not allowed to read. Their tax dollars paid the salary of the teacher who bashed my head up against a concreted block wall in an argument that I had with him over a book he would not allow me to check out from the library. Their tax dollars paid the salary of the PE coach who had me suspend for failure to climb a stupid rope that I was unable to climb because of my knee injury. So, the only thing my parents got back for their tax dollars is the SSI Disability Check I get every month. My mother helped me to apply for it when I turned 18. That's my early retirement pension! So, suck on the Bimbo! If you want to hear a louder jingle in your pocket, then go out and whore for it! Else, shut the fuck up!

=====

4th grade science book MSN Money: What if no one were fat?

Posted by Nick - 2008/05/10 20:06

---

First of all, when I was molested, the gut was physically much stronger, he had his arm around my neck, and I didn't have the strength to fight him off, and he said that if I struggle that he was going to kill me! So, what the hells was I suppose to do! Did he make you swallow?

=====

4th grade science book MSN Money: What if no one were fat?

Posted by Fat Teddy Bear - 2008/05/10 20:06

---

First of all, when I was molested, the gut was physically much stronger, he had his arm around my neck, and I didn't have the strength to fight him off, and he said that if I struggle that he was going to kill me! So, what the hells was I suppose to do! Did he make you swallow? No, you you sorry sanctimonious scum-bag piece of dog shit! I was butt-banged! Now, you may go suck on a gun and blow your shit-for brains out through the top of your skull!

=====

4th grade science book MSN Money: What if no one were fat?

Posted by Naughty Boy - 2008/05/10 20:06

---

Now, you may go suck on a gun and blow your shit-for brains out through the top of your skull! That should be reserved for non-productive members of society.

=====

4th grade science book MSN Money: What if no one were fat?

Posted by The Master - 2008/05/10 20:06

---

And another one-third felt it was "not at all important" to know a foreign language. This one I actually agree with. I live in America, English is spoken here. Honestly, why in the hell should I learn how to speak spanish? If spanish speaking people want to move to the USA (legally or otherwise), they should learn the language, not the other way around. I'd like to learn Japanese. But that's for fun, so I can buy import games, and watch unedited anime.

---

=====

4th grade science book MSN Money: What if no one were fat?

Posted by The Master - 2008/05/10 20:06

---

No, I really don't wish that everybody were fat like me. I know that is just as unrealistic as Shirley Skeel wishing that everybody were thin. There is an idealized view of people. Must be this height, this weight, this religion, etc. If you aren't that, by God you should be. If you don't want to be that, there is something wrong with you. If you are that, it is your job to piss off, annoy, and otherwise be an asshole, until others realize just how right you are and convert. That is the troll thought process, and there is nothing more annoying than a troll who writes for what some consider a legitimate web site.

=====

4th grade science book MSN Money: What if no one were fat?

Posted by The Master - 2008/05/10 20:06

---

Also, they decided that instead of educating students in science and math, it was cheaper to train football players, Those who can do, those who can't teach... If the teacher was any good at science, they wouldn't be teaching it, they would be doing it.

=====