
business letter format

Some time ago, somebody mentioned something about set formats for business letters. I believe there was a book that had a wide selection of formats for various purposes. I didn't pay attention because I didn't think I would ever need it. Now I need it. A website would be even better. Ross Roebuck, South Carolina

I posted a brief review of Writing Letters in Japanese (ISBN4-7890-0664-6) to the AFAQ many many moons ago. I think that's what you want, I don't know of any similar books.

http://community.webshots.com/user/ross_klatte I have one called Writing Letters in Japanese . It's not specifically about business letters, but does include them. It's published by The Japan Times, written by Inter-University Center for Japanese Language Studies. Editors are: Kikuko Tatematsu, Yoko Tateoka, Takashi Matsumoto and Tsukasa Sato. The ISBN is 4-7890-0664-6. Hope this helps, JN

From: Charles Eicher ceic...@inav.net Date: 2002-11-28 13:48 Eastern Standard Time I do have a short sample available, I scanned a few pages for incorporation into my little .pdf resume kit (the book also has extensive notes on writing resumes and letters of application for employment). I used to have the document online, but I took it down because someone deeplinked to it from their site. I'll dig it up if you're interested in seeing it. Yes, please. OK, it's up online now. Let me know if you have any trouble accessing it: <http://ceicher.homeunix.com/rirekisho.pdf> It's 1.8mb, pages 4 through 10 are scanned from the book, and are fairly representative of the sample letter chapters, although the best part of the book is the grammar and style chapters which are not represented here.

resume portion is wildly different from the American style. My resume coach made me rewrite mine several times, every time adding more and more exaggeration, until I found it quite embarrassing. We also spent a lot of time on appearance

I have accused several people of being stupid, so here is their opportunity to get back at me. I bought a program called Net Detective for $29, hoping to find out all kinds of lurid gossip about my neighbors in Tim's Creek and in s.l.j. Part 1, Search by Name, could not even find my own name. Eventually I found myself as a dependent of my daughter, complete with misspelled names, wrong address, and wrong phone number. Only about one name in four, of people I know, was found. The Net Detective was dramatically inferior to the phone book in locating people. When I did the Search by Criminal Record, I got a page that said, Go to the State Law Enforcement Division, pay them their $25 fee, and they will give you the criminal record. When I did the Search by Lawsuit History, I got a page that said, Go to the Spartanburg County courthouse and look up the lawsuit history there. Search by Business History directed me to the local chamber of commerce. Etc. This is a very nice public service. In return for your kindness in providing this information, I will refrain from taunting you about the Canucks adding the scalps of the Hurricane to their belt as they achieved their 8th straight win.
